

Production Details for A Day in the Life of Rene Fuentes (2006)

A Day in the Life of Rene Fuentes is a short documentary of my good friend Rene Fuentes. The movie attempts to illustrate to its audience a typical day in his life. The documentary is shot in a specific style called Cinema Verte. All this means is that I followed Rene around for a day, recorded what he did without telling him to do anything so that it's as completely realistic as possible, and then I edited it together.

I believe I followed Rene for about six or seven hours one day. I saw everything from his living habits to his friends to seeing where he goes to tutor students in psychology to Target (which I darn near got kicked out of for bringing a camera into the store unannounced). It was a pretty fun experience for all parties involved.